Report of Lieut General U S Grant, of the Armies of the United States 1864-'65

On the 19th of April and prior to the movement of General Butler the enemy with a land force under General Hoke and an iron clad ram, attacked Plymouth N C commanded by General H W Wessels, and our gunboats there, and after severe fighting the place was carried by assault and the entire garrison and armament captured The gunboat Southfield was sunk and the Miami disabled

The army sent to operate against Richmond having hermetically sealed itself up at Bermuda Hundreds the enemy was enabled to bring the most if not all the re-inforcements brought from the south by Beauregard against the army of the Potomac In addition to this re-inforcement, a very considerable one, probably not less than 15,000 men was obtained by calling in the scattered troops under Breckinridge from the western part of Virginia

The position at Bermuda Hundreds was as easy to defend as it was difficult to operate from against the enemy I determined, therefore, to bring from it all available forces, leaving enough only to secure what had been gained and accordingly on the 22d, I directed that they be sent forward, under command of Major General W F Smith, to join the army of the Potomac

On the 24th of May the 9th army corps, commanded by Major General A E Burnside, was assigned to the army of the Potomac, and from this time forward constituted a portion of Major General Meade's command

Finding the enemy's position on the North Anna stronger than either of his previous ones I withdrew on the night of the 26th to the north bank of the North Anna, and moved via Hanover town to turn the enemy's position by his right

Generals Torbert's and Merritt's divisions of cavalry under Sheridan, and the 6th corps led the advance, crossed the Pamunky river at Hanovertown after considerable fighting, and on the 28th the two divisions of cavalry had a severe but successful engagement with the enemy at Haw's shop On the 29th and 30th we advanced, with heavy skirmishing to the Hanover Court House and Cold Harbor road, and developed the enemy's position north of the Chickahominy Late on the evening of the last day the enemy came out and attacked our left which was repulsed with very considerable loss. An attack was immediately ordered by General Meade along his whole line, which resulted in driving the enemy from a part of his intrenched skirmish line.

On the 31st General Wilson's divisions of cavalry destroyed the railroad bridges over the South Anna river, after defeating the enemy's cavalry General Sheridan, on the same day, reached Cold Harbor, and held it until relieved by the 6th corps and General Smith's command which had just arrived via White House, from General Butler's army.

On the 1st day of June an attack was made at 5 P M, by the 6th corps and the troops under General Smith, the other corps being held in readiness to advance on the receipt of orders This resulted in our carrying and holding the enemy's first line of works in front of the right of the 6th corps and in front of General Smith. During the attack the enemy made repeated assaults on each of the corps not engaged in the main attack, but were repulsed with heavy loss in every instance. That night he made several assaults to regain what he had lost in the day, but failed. The 2d was spent in getting the troops into position for an attack on the 3d On the 3d of June we again assaulted the enemy's works, in the hope of driving him from his position In this attempt our loss was heavy, while that of the enemy, I have reason to believe, was comparatively light It was the only general attack made from the Rapidan to the James which did not inflict upon the enemy losses to compensate for our own losses I would not be understood as saying that all previous attacks resulted in victory to our arms, or accomplished as much as I had hoped for them, but they inflicted upon the enemy severe losses, which tended, in the end, to the complete overthrow of the rebellion.

From the proximity of the enemy to his defences around Richmond, it was impossible by any flank movement to interpose between him and the city. I was still in condition to either move by his left and invest Richmond from the north side, or continue my move by his right flank to the south side of the James While the former might have been better as a covering for Washington, yet a full survey of all the ground satisfied me that it would be impracticable to hold a line north and east of Richmond that would protect the Fredericksburg Railroad—a long vulnerable line, which would exhaust much of our strength to guard, and that would have to be protected to have supplied the army, and would leave open to the enemy all his lines of communication on the south side of the James My idea, from the start had been to beat Lee's army north of Richmond if possible. Then, after destroying his lines of communication north of the James river, to transfer the army to the south side and besiege Lee in Richmond, or follow him south should he retreat After the battle of the Wilderness it was evident that the enemy deemed it of the first importance to run no risks with the army he then had He acted purely on the defensive behind breastworks, or feebly on the offensive immediately in front of them, and where in case of repulse he could easily retire behind them Without a greater sacrifice of life than I was willing to make, all could not be accomplished that I had designed north of Richmond. I therefore determined to continue to hold substantially the ground we then occupied, taking advantage of any favorable circumstances that might present themselves, until the cavalry could be sent to Charlottesville and Gordonsville, to effectually break up the railroad connection between Richmond and the Shenandoah Valley and Lynchburg, and, when the cavalry got well off, to move the army to the south side of the James river, by the enemy's right flank, where I felt I could cut off all his sources of supply except by the canal

On the 7th, two divisions of cavalry, under General Sheridan, got off on the expedition against the Virginia Central Railroad, with instructions to Hunter, whom I hoped he would meet near Charlottesville, to join his forces to Sheridan's, and after the work laid out for them was thoroughly done to join the army of the Potomac by the route laid down in Sheridan's instructions

On the 10th of June General Butler sent a force of infantry under General Gilmore and cavalry under General Kautz, to capture Petersburg if possible and destroy the railroad and common bridges across the Appomattox The cavalry carried the works on the south side, and penetrated well in towards the town, but were forced to retire General Gilmore finding the works which he approached very strong, and deeming an assault impracticable returned to Bermuda Hundreds without attempting one.

Attaching great importance to the possession of Petersburg I sent back to Bermuda Hundreds and City Point General Smith's command by water via the White House, to reach there in advance of the army of the Potomac This was for the express purpose of securing Petersburg before the enemy becoming aware of our intention, could re inforce the place

The movement from Cold Harbor commenced after dark on the evening of the 12th, one division of cavalry under General Wilson, and the 5th corps crossed the Chickahominy at Long Bridge, and moved out to White Oak swamp to cover the crossing of the other corps The advance corps reached James river, at Wilcox's landing and Charles City Court House on the night of the 13th

During three long years the armies of the Potomac and northern Virginia had been confronting each other, In that time they had fought more desperate battles than it probably ever falls to the lot of two armies to fight, without materially changing the vantage ground of either The Southern press and people with more shrewdness than was displayed in the North finding they had failed to capture Washington and march on to New York as they had boasted they would do, assumed that they defended their capital and territory Hence, Antietam, Gettysburg, and all the other battles that had been fought, were by them set down as failures on our part and victories for them Their army believed this It produced a morale which could only be overcome by desperate and continuous hard fighting The battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna and Cold Harbor, bloody and terrible as they were on our side, were even more damaging to the enemy and so crippled him as to make him wary ever after of taking the offensive His losses in men were probably not so great, owing to the fact that we were save in the Wilderness, almost invariably the attacking party and when he did attack it was in the open field The details of those battles, which for endurance and bravery on the part of the soldiery have rarely been surpassed, are given in the report of Major General Meade, and the subordinate reports accompanying it

During the campaign of forty three days, from the Rapidan to the James River, the army had to be supplied from an ever shifting base, by wagons, over narrow roads, through a densely wooded country with a lack of wharves at each new base from which to conveniently discharge vessels Too much credit cannot therefore be awarded to the quartermaster and commissary departments for the zeal and efficiency displayed by them Under the general supervision of the chief quartermaster Brigadier General R Ingalls, the trains were made to occupy all the available roads between the army and our water base and but little difficulty was experienced in protecting them

The movement in the Kanawha and Shenandoah valleys, under General Sigel commenced on the first of May General Crook who had the immediate command of the Kanawha expedition, divided his forces into two columns giving one, composed of cavalry, to General Averill. They crossed the mountains by separate routes Averill struck the Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, near Wytheville, on the 10th, and proceeding to New river and Christiansburg, destroyed the road, several important bridges and depots, including New river bridge forming a junction with Crook at Union on the 15th General Sigel moved up the Shenandoah valley, met the enemy at New Market on the 15th, and, after a severe engagement, was defeated with heavy loss, and retired behind Cedar Creek Not regarding the operations of General Sigel as satisfactory, I asked his removal from command, and Major General Hunter was appointed to supersede him His instructions were embraced in the following dispatches to Major General H W Halleck, chief of staff of the army

NEAR SPOTTSYLVANIA COURT HOUSE VA,
May 20, 1864

The enemy are evidently relying for supplies greatly on such as are brought over the branch road running through Staunton On the whole therefore, I think it would be better for General Hunter to move in that direction: reach Staunton and Gordonsville or Charlottesville, if he does not meet too much opposition If he can hold at bay a force equal to his own he will be doing good service * * * U S GRANT, Lieutenant General

Major General H. W. Halleck.

JERICHO FORD, VA, May 25, 1864.

If Hunter can possibly get to Charlottesville and Lynchburg, he should do so, living on the country The railroad and canal should be destroyed beyond possibility of repairs for weeks Completing this he could find his way back to his original base, or from about Gordonsville join this army U S GRANT, Lieutenant General

Major General H W Halleck

General Hunter immediately took up the offensive, and moving up the Shenandoah Valley, met the enemy on the 5th of June at Piedmont, and after a battle of ten hours routed and defeated him, capturing on the field of battle 1500 men, 3 pieces of artillery, and 300 stand of small-arms. On the 8th of the same month he formed a junction with Crook and Averill, at Staunton, from which place he moved direct on Lynchburg, via Lexington, which place he reached and invested on the 16th day of June. Up to this time he was very successful, and but for the difficulty of taking with him sufficient ordnance stores over so long a march, through a hostile country, he would no doubt have captured that, to the enemy an important point. The destruction of the enemy's supplies and manufactories was very great. To meet this movement under General Hunter, General Lee sent a force, perhaps equal to a corps, a part of which reached Lynchburg a short time before Hunter. After some skirmishing on the 17th and 18th, Gen Hunter, owing to a want of ammunition to give battle, retired from before the place Undoubtedly, this want of ammunition left him no choice of route for his return but by way of Kanawha. This lost to us the use of his troops for several weeks from the defence of the north.

Had General Hunter moved by way of Charlottesville, instead of Lexington, as his instructions contemplated, he would have been in a position to have covered the Shenandoah valley against the enemy, should the force he met have seemed to endanger it If it did not he would have been within easy distance of the James river canal, on the main line of communication between Lynchburg and the force sent for its defence. I have never taken exception to the operations of General Hunter, and am not now disposed to find fault with him, for I have no doubt he acted within what he conceived to be the spirit of his instructions and the interests of the service The promptitude of his movements and his gallantry should entitle him to the commendation of his country.

To return to the army of the Potomac The 2d corps commenced crossing the James river on the morning of the 14th by ferry-boats at Wilcox's landing. The laying of the pontoon bridge was completed about midnight of the 14th, and the crossing of the balance of the army was rapidly pushed forward by both bridge and ferry.

After the crossing had commenced, I proceeded by steamer to Bermuda Hundreds to give the necessary orders for the immediate capture of Petersburg

The instructions to General Butler were verbal and were for him to send General Smith immediately, that night, with all the troops he could give him without sacrificing the position he then held I told him that I would return at once to the army of the Potomac, hasten its crossing, and throw it forward to Petersburg by divisions as rapidly as it could be done; that we could re-enforce our armies more rapidly there than the enemy could bring troops against us. General Smith got off as directed, and confronted the enemy's pickets near Petersburg before daylight next morning, but for some reason, that I have never been able to satisfactorily understand, did not get ready to assault his main lines until near sundown Then, with a part of his command only, he made the assault and carried the lines northeast of Petersburg from the Appomattox River, for a distance of over two and and half miles, capturing fifteen pieces of artillery and three hundred prisoners. This was about 7 P M Between the line thus captured and Petersburg there were no other works, and there was no evidence that the enemy had re enforced Petersburg with a single brigade from any source The night was clear—the moon shining brightly—and favorable to further operations General Hancock, with two divisions of the 2d corps, reached General Smith just after dark, and offered the service of the troops as he (Smith) might wish, waiving rank to the named commander, who he naturally supposed knew best the position of affairs and what to do with the troops But instead of taking those troops, and pushing at once into Petersburg, he requested General Hancock to relieve a part of his line in the captured works, which was done before midnight

By the time I arrived the next morning the enemy was in force An attack was ordered to be made at 6 o'clock that evening by the troops under Smith and the 2d and 9th corps It required until that time for the 9th corps to get up and into position The attack was made as ordered, and the fighting continued with but little intermission until 6 o'clock the next morning, and resulted in our carrying the advance and some of the main works of the enemy to the right (our left) of those previously captured by General Smith several pieces of artillery, and over four hundred prisoners

The 5th corps having got up, the attacks were renewed and persisted in with great vigor on the 17th and 18th, but only resulted in forcing the enemy to an interior line from which he could not be dislodged The advantages in position gained by us were very great. The army then proceeded to envelop Petersburg toward the Southside railroad, as far as possible, without attacking fortifications

On the 6th the enemy, to re enforce Petersburg withdrew from a part of his intrenchment in front of Bermuda Hundreds, expecting no doubt to get troops from north of the James to take the place of those withdrawn before we could discover it General Butler, taking advantage of this at once moved a force on the railroad between Petersburg and Richmond As soon as I was apprised of the advantage thus gained, to retain it I ordered two divisions of the 6th corps, General Wright commanding that were embarked at Wilcox's Landing, under orders for City Point, to report to General Butler, at Bermuda Hundreds of which General Butler was notified, and the importance of holding a position in advance of his present line urged upon him

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon General Butler was forced back to the line the enemy had withdrawn from in the morning General Wright with his two divisions, joined General Butler on the forenoon of the 17th the latter still holding with a strong picket line the enemy's works But instead of putting those divisions into the enemy's works to hold them he permitted them to halt and rest some distance in the rear of his own line Between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon the enemy attacked and drove in his pickets and re occupied his old line

On the night of the 20th and morning of the 21st a lodgment was effected by General Butler with one brigade of infantry on the north bank of the James, at Deep Bottom, and connected the pontoon bridge with Bermuda Hundreds

On the 19th General Sheridan, on his return from his expedition against the Virginia Central Railroad arrived at the White House just as the enemy's cavalry was about to attack it and compelled it to retire The result of this expedition was that General Sheridan met the enemy's cavalry near Trevillian Station, on the morning of the 11th of June, whom he attacked and after an obstinate contest drove from the field in complete rout He left his dead and nearly all his wounded in our hands, and about four hundred prisoners and several hundred horses On the 12th he destroyed the railroad from Trevillian Station to Louisa Court House This occupied until 3 o'clock P M, when he advanced in the direction of Gordonsville He found the enemy re inforced by infantry, behind well constructed rifle pits, about five miles from the latter place, and too strong to successfully assault On the extreme right however, his reserve brigade carried the enemy's works twice, and was twice driven therefrom by infantry Night closed the contest. Not having sufficient ammunition to continue the engagement, and his animals being without forage, (the country furnishing but inferior grazing) and hearing nothing from General Hunter, he withdrew his command to the North side of the North Anna, and commenced his return march, reaching White House at the time before stated. After breaking up the depot at that place he moved to the James river, which he reached safely after heavy fighting. He commenced crossing on the 25th, near Fort Powhatan, without further molestation, and rejoined the army of the Potomac.

On the 22d, Gen. Wilson with his own division of cavalry of the army of the Potomac, and Gen. Kautz's division of cavalry of the army of the James, moved against the enemy's railroad south of Richmond. Striking the Weldon railroad at Ream's station, destroying the depot and several miles of the road, and the Southside road about fifteen miles of Petersburg, to near Nottoway station, where he met and defeated a force of the enemy's cavalry, he reached Burkesville station on the afternoon of the 23d, and from there destroyed the Danville railroad to Roanoke bridge, a distance of twenty five miles, where he found the enemy in force, and in a position from which he could not dislodge him. He then commenced his return march, and on the 28th met the enemy's cavalry in force at the Weldon railroad crossing of Stony creek, where he had a severe but not decisive engagement Thence he made a detour from his left, with a view of reaching Ream's Station, (supposing it to be in our possession.) At this place he was met by the enemy's cavalry, supported by infantry, and forced to retire, with the loss of his artillery and trains. In this last encounter General Kautz, with a part of his command, became separated, and made his way into our lines General Wilson, with the remainder of his force, succeeded in crossing the Nottoway river and coming in safely on our left and rear The damage to the enemy in this expedition more than compensated for the losses we sustained It severed all connection by railroad with Richmond for several weeks.

With a view of cutting the enemy's railroad from near Richmond to the Anna rivers and making him wary of the situation of his army in the Shenandoah, and, in the event of failure in this, to take advantage of his necessary withdrawal of troops from Petersburg, to explode a mine that had been prepared in front of the 9th corps and assault the enemy's lines at that place, on the night of the 26th of July the 2d corps and Kautz's cavalry were crossed to the north bank of the James River and joined the force Gen. Butler had there. On the 27th the enemy was driven from his intrenched position, with the loss of four pieces of artillery. On the 28th our lines were extended from Deep Bottom to New Market road, but in getting this position were attacked in heavy force, resulting in considerable loss on both sides. The first object of this move having failed, by reason of the very large force thrown there by the enemy, I determined to take advantage of the diversion made by assaulting Petersburg before he could get his force back there. One division of the second corps was withdrawn on the night of the 28th, and moved during the night to the rear of the eighteenth corps, to relieve that corps in the line, that it might be foot loose in the assault to be made. The other two divisions of the second corps and Sheridan's cavalry were crossed over on the night of the 29th and moved in front of Petersburg. On the morning of the 30th between four and five o'clock, the mine was sprung, blowing up a battery and most of a regiment, and the advance of the assaulting column formed of the ninth corps, immediately took possession of the crater made by the explosion, and the line for some distance to the right and left of it and a detached line in front of it, but for some cause failed to advance promptly to the ridge beyond Had they done this, I have every reason to believe that Petersburg would have fallen Other troops were immediately pushed forward, but the time consumed in getting them up enabled the enemy to rally from his surprise (which had been complete) and get forces to this point for its defence The captured line thus held being untenable, and of no advantage to us, the troops were withdrawn, but not without heavy loss. Thus terminated in disaster what promised to be the most successful assault of the campaign

Immediately upon the enemy's ascertaining that General Hunter was retreating from Lynchburg by way of the Kanawha river, thus laying the Shenandoah valley open for raids into Maryland and Pennsylvania, he returned northward and moved down that valley. As soon as this movement of the enemy was ascertained, General Hunter, who had reached the Kanawha river, was directed to move his troops without delay, by river and railroad, to Harper's Ferry, but owing to the difficulty of navigation by reason of low water and breaks in the canal, great delay was experienced in getting there It became necessary therefore, to find other troops to check this movement of the enemy For this purpose the 6th corps was taken from the armies operating against Richmond, to which was added the 19th corps then fortunately beginning to arrive in Hampton Roads from the Gulf department under orders issued immediately after the ascertainment of the result of the Red River expedition The garrisons of Baltimore and Washington were at this time made up of heavy artillery regiments hundred-day's men, and detachments from the invalid corps One division under command of General Ricketts of the 6th corps was sent to Baltimore, and the remaining two divisions of the 6th corps under General Wright were subsequently sent to Washington On the 3d of July the enemy approached Martinsburg; General Sigel who was in command of our forces there retreated across the Potomac at Shepardstown and General Weber commanding at Harper's Ferry crossed the river and occupied Maryland heights On the 6th the enemy occupied Hagerstown, moving a strong column towards Frederick city General Wallace with Rickett's division and his own command, the latter mostly new and undisciplined troops, pushed out from Baltimore with great promptness and met the enemy in force on the Monocacy, near the crossing of the railroad bridge His force was not sufficient to insure success, but he fought the enemy nevertheless, and although it resulted in a defeat to our arms, yet it detained the enemy and thereby served to enable General Wright to reach Washington with two divisions of the 6th corps and the advance of the 19th corps before him From Monocacy the enemy moved on Washington his cavalry advancing as far as Rockville on the evening of the 10th On the 12th a reconnoissance was thrown out in front of Fort Stevens to ascertain the enemy's position and force A severe skirmish ensued in which we lost about 280 in killed and wounded The enemy's loss was probably greater He commenced retreating during the night Learning the exact condition of affairs at Washington I requested by telegraph at 1:45 P M. on the 12th the assignment of Major General H G Wright to the command of all the troops that could be made available to operate in the field against the enemy and directed that he should get outside the trenches with all the force he could and push Early to the last moment Gen Wright commenced the pursuit on the 13th on the 18th the enemy was overtaken at Snicker's Ferry on the Shenandoah when a sharp skirmish occurred and on the 20th General Averill encountered and defeated a portion of the rebel army at Winchester capturing four pieces of artillery and several hundred prisoners

Learning that Early was retreating south towards Lynchburg or Richmond I directed the 6th and 19th corps to be got back to the armies operating against Richmond so that they might be used in a movement against Lee before the return of the troops sent by him into the valley and that Hunter should remain in the Shenandoah valley, keeping between any force of the enemy and Washington acting on the defensive as much as possible I felt that if the enemy had any notion of returning the fact would be developed before the 6th and 19th corps could leave Washington Subsequently the 19th corps was excepted from the order to return to the James.

About the 25th it became evident that the enemy was again advancing upon Maryland and Pennsylvania, and the 6th corps, then at Washington was ordered back to the vicinity of Harper's Ferry The rebel force moved down the valley and sent a raiding party into Pennsylvania, which on the 30th burned Chambersburg and then retreated, pursued by our cavalry, toward Cumberland They were met and defeated by General Kelly, and with diminished numbers escaped into the mountains of West Virginia. From the time of the first raid the telegraph wires were frequently down between Washington and City Point, making it necessary to transmit messages part of the way by boat It took from twenty-four to thirty-six hours to get dispatches through and return answers back; so that often orders would be given and then information would be received showing a different state of facts from those on which they were based, causing a confusion and apparent contradiction of orders that must have considerably embarrassed those who had to execute them, and rendered operations against the enemy less effective than they otherwise would have been. To remedy this evil, it was evident to my mind that some person should have the supreme command of all the forces in West Virginia, Washington, Susquehanna and the middle department, and so I recommended.

On the 2d of August I ordered General Sheridan to report in person to Major General Halleck, chief of staff, at Washington, with a view to his assignment to the command of all the forces against Early. At this time the enemy was concentrated in the neighborhood of Winchester, whilst our forces, under General Hunter, were concentrated on the Monocacy, at the crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, leaving open to the enemy Western Maryland and Southern Pennsylvania. From where I was I hesitated to give positive orders for the movement of our forces at Monocacy, lest by so doing I should expose Washington. Therefore, on the 4th I left City Point to visit Hunter's command, and determine for myself what was best to be done. On arrival there, and after consultation with General Hunter, I issued to him the following instructions:

MONOCACY BRIDGE, MD, Aug 5, 1864—8 P. M.

GENERAL: Concentrate all your available force without delay in the vicinity of Harper's Ferry, leaving only such railroad guards and garrisons for public property as may be necessary. Use, in this concentrating, the railroads, if by so doing time can be saved From Harper's Ferry, if it is found that the enemy has moved north of the Potomac in large force, push north, following him and attacking him wherever found; follow him, if driven south of the Potomac, as long as it is safe to do so. If it is ascertained that the enemy has but a small force north of the Potomac, then push south with the main force, detaching under a competent commander a sufficient force to look after the raiders and drive them to their homes. In detaching such a force, the brigade of cavalry now en route from Washington via Rockville may be taken into account.

There are now on their way to join you three other brigades of the best cavalry, numbering at least 5,000 men and horses. These will be instructed, in the absence of further orders, to join you by the south side of the Potomac One brigade will probably start to-morrow. In pushing up the Shenandoah Valley, where it is expected you will have to go first or last, it is desirable that nothing should be left to invite the enemy to return Take all provisions, forage and stock wanted for the use of your command; such as cannot be consumed destroy It is not desirable that the buildings should be destroyed—they should rather be protected—but the people should be informed that so long as an army can subsist among them recurrences of these raids must be expected, and we are determined to stop them at all hazards.

Bear in mind the object is to drive the enemy south, and to do this you want to keep him always in sight. Be guided in your course by the course he takes.

Make your own arrangements for supplies of all kinds, giving regular vouchers for such as may be taken from loyal citizens in the country through which you march

U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant General.

Major General D Hunter.

The troops were immediately put in motion, and the advance reached Halltown that night.

General Hunter, having, in our conversation, expressed a willingness to be relieved from command, I telegraphed to have General Sheridan, then at Washington, sent to Harper's Ferry by the morning train, with orders to take general command of all the troops in the field, and to call on General Hunter at Monocacy, who would turn over to him my letter of instructions, I remained at Monocacy, until General Sheridan arrived, on the morning of the 6th, and, after a conference with him in relation to military affairs in that vicinity, I returned to City Point by way of Washington

On the 7th of August the middle department and the departments of West Virginia, Washington, and Susquehannah were constituted into the "middle military division," and Major General Sheridan was assigned to temporary command of the same

Two divisions of cavalry, commanded by Generals Torbet and Wilson, were sent to Sheridan from the Army of the Potomac. The first reached him at Harper's Ferry about the 11th of August.

His operations during the month of August and the fore part of September were both of an offensive and defensive character, resulting in many severe skirmishes principally by the cavalry, in which we were generally successful, but no general engagement took place The two armies lay in such a position—the enemy on the west bank of the Opequan Creek covering Winchester, and our forces in front of Berryville—that either could bring on a battle at any time Defeat to us would lay open to the enemy the States of Maryland and Pennsylvania for long distances before another army could be interposed to check him. Under these circumstances I hesitated about allowing the initiative to be taken. Finally, the use of the Ohio and Baltimore Railroad and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, which were obstructed by the enemy, became so indispensably necessary to us, and the importance of relieving Pennsylvania and Maryland from continuous invasion was so great that I determined what should be taken But fearing to telegraph the order for an attack without knowing more than I did of Gen Sheridan's feelings as to what would be the probable result, I left City Point on the 15th of September to visit him at his headquarters, to decide after conference with him, what should be done I met him at Charleston, and he pointed out so distinctly how each army lay, what he could do the moment he was authorized, and expressed such confidence of success, that I saw there were but two words of instructions necessary—Go in! For the convenience of forage, the teams for supplying the army were kept at Harper's Ferry I asked him if he could get out his teams and supplies in time to make an attack on the ensuing Tuesday morning His reply was that he could before daylight on Monday He was off promptly to time and I may here add that the result was such that I have never since deemed it necessary to visit General Sheridan before giving him orders

Early on the morning of the 19th General Sheridan attacked General Early at the crossing of the Opequan Creek and after a most sanguinary and bloody battle lasting until 5 o'clock in the evening defeated him with heavy loss carrying his entire position from Opequan Creek to Winchester, capturing several thousand prisoners and five pieces of artillery The enemy rallied and made a stand in a strong position at Fisher's Hill where he was attacked and again defeated with heavy loss on the 20th. Sheridan pursued him with great energy through Harrisonburg, Staunton, and the gaps of the Blue Ridge After stripping the upper valley of most of the supplies and provisions for the rebel army he returned to Strasburg, and took position on the north side of Cedar Creek

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 22, 1866

THE UNION STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Are requested to meet at SALEM ON THURSDAY THE 15TH DAY OF FEBRUARY next. Where [illegible] occur in the Committee, the Counties [illegible] are requested to fill them as it is desired to have a full attendance at that time. [illegible]

Chairman Union State Central Committee.
Salem, Oregon, Jan. 1st 1866.

Southern Unionism.

In a recent letter written by S. R. Mallory, late a member of the rebel Cabinet, advising the people of the South to accept the results of the war including the abolition of slavery and to repudiate all rebel debts and give the blacks the right to testify in the courts we find also this paragraph:

"The surrender of the asserted right of secession, a doctrine cherished by the South as derived from the history, theory and genius of the Federal compact, results from defeat and reconstruction."

In the foregoing there is a restatement of an important fact which must have frequently occurred to every one. The ex rebel Secretary's language implies that there is not now, and has never been, any true national sentiment at the South. There has been no love for the country as a unit or a whole, there has been no development of patriotic sentiment among the people. Under the false teachings of ambitious political leaders, the people learned to despise the Government of the United States. The regard they should have cherished for it as the supreme power was bestowed upon their local governments. The Union had small place in their thoughts — none whatever in their hearts. With them, there was little idea that the United States was a nation. The States, separately considered, were all, the General Government was nothing.

These errors were rooted too deeply to be eradicated in a day. Southern Unionism, of which we now hear so much, is but a very little improvement upon Southern feeling as it was before the war. One lesson indeed, they have learned—the lesson that the Government is strong enough to punish all who spurn its authority. This inspires respect for the majesty of the Government. Love for it will be much slower growth. Southern Unionism is yet "sicklied over with the pale cast of thought" or sentiment which prevailed in those States prior to the rebellion. To effectually cure the malady will be the work of time.

At the South there is a class of politicians who seek place and power by the inculcation of those same narrow, unpatriotic views. These men cannot be the instruments of building up a loyal, national sentiment in that part of the country. Therefore they ought to be excluded from any participation whatever in the affairs of Government. Much less should they be permitted to take the lead. It is vital to the country that there should be a change in the temper and feeling of that portion of our people. The influx of Northern emigration, the introduction of a population from foreign countries and the influences which free speech and a free press—now first established in the South, will exercise, will do much to correct the vitiated public sentiment of the Southern States. The great result, so much desired, would be brought about infinitely more quickly and surely by the entire exclusion of the old class of demagogical politicians from the exercise of political power.

The Montana Trade.

Of late, much interest has been manifested in this place in the matter of securing the trade of Montana Territory. In the opening of a route from the present head of navigation on the Columbia river to the mines of Montana, lie all the difficulties that are just now to be encountered. In connection with enterprises now under way to establish a practicable and permanent route from the Columbia to the new mines, we may mention that from actual surveys it appears that Blackfoot City lies only fifty miles north of a due east course from Wallula, and, of course, a less distance north of east from White Bluffs. Portland is only one hundred miles south of the parallel of Blackfoot City. These facts, we believe, are not generally taken into account. The common opinion seems to be that the mines of Montana lie very far to the north; when, as is shown above, they are only a very little north of a due east course from this place. This fact is an additional argument in favor of the position that the Columbia river is the natural channel for the trade of Montana Territory. This, we think, the people of Montana will be convinced of before the end of the present year.

The New York Freeman's Journal, a rebel paper of the Romish faith, whose pro-slavery principles disgrace the name it bears, wants the United States Government to reward the rebel leaders who strove with all their might to destroy the Union. This "Di[illegible]" editor opens his mind on the subject as follows:

"Why, we ask, should not the meritorious officers of the Confederate side, have, not simply grace for the past, but position for the future? Is it not the dictate of the most common prudence to fortify ourselves by a thorough re-union with the States of the South, and to coax and win as many as possible of her successful officers to assume commands in our armies?"

It excites no wonder that those who were so anxious for the success of the rebel Confederacy should now turn almoners for the chief actors in that treasonable enterprise, and go to begging for places for them under the Government they once abused and betrayed.

THE FALL OF THE REBELLION.—Among the prominent causes which are cited by Secretary Stanton, as exercising a demoralizing effect upon the hopes of the rebellion, during the last year of its existence, was the signal defeat inflicted upon McClellan as the candidate of the pro-secession party of the North. Upon this point, the Secretary tersely says:

"The result of the Presidential election of 1864 exerted an important influence upon the war. Intercepted letters and dispatches between the rebel leaders showed that their hopes of success rested greatly upon the Presidential election. If the Union party prevailed, the prosecution of the war until the national authority should be restored appeared inevitable, and the rebel cause desperate. Even on the battlefield, the influence of the election was felt. The overwhelming voice of the people at the Presidential election, encouraged the heroic daring of our own troops, and dismayed those who were fighting in a hopeless cause."

COLORED TROOPS.—From the annual report of the Secretary of War it appears that the whole number of colored men enlisted into the service of the United States during the rebellion was 1[illegible]8,975. The largest number in service at any one time, was on the 15th of July 1865, viz: 123,1[illegible]6. The losses among these troops during the war from all causes (except such as were mustered out) was 68,178. The number still in the service is 85,024.

NUMBER OF MEN IN OUR ARMIES.—The report of the Secretary of War informs us that the number of men called for from the 15th of April 1861 to the 14th of April 1865, at which time drafting and recruiting ceased, was 2,7[illegible]0,049. The aggregate number credited to the States under the several calls, was 2,656,553. This then was the number of men employed in putting down the rebellion.

We find this pointed and truthful statement in Harper's Weekly:

"Had the Southern people a few years ago listened to the Abolitionists who were among them instead of hanging them they would not be in their present condition."

Spain and Chile.

We present a number of extracts from foreign journals of late date, which explain the present status of the quarrel between Spain and Chili. The position of the British Government towards the belligerents is thus touched upon by the London Times of December 1st:

"In the face of such high handed interference with the republic of Chile, deliberately persisted in contrary to the remonstrances of the representatives of the chief Powers of Europe and America and now, as it appears, approved and ratified by Marshal O'Donnell and his colleagues, it be [illegible] are justified in acquiescing in it. All trade is a weapon permitted to every belligerent, and neutrals are bound so respect it when it is properly established. But it cannot be permitted to any minister who finds it desirable to distract the attention of the nation [illegible] from misrule at home by giving them [illegible] of aggression abroad wantonly to attack an innocent neighbor, to interfere with the peaceful operations of commerce, the liberty of exchange between neutral nations, and to attack the civilization of the world. A blockade is a weapon of war, but war itself must be capable of justification, or neutrals will be driven to become belligerents in insisting upon its cessation. Even now we are not without hopes that the Spanish Government will recede from the false position that it has taken, or at all events that the Spanish nation will do what it has done before, and in missing Marshal O'Donnell from office, will call to power some one who will undo what he has done; but every day proves more clearly the necessity that we should be prompt and decisive in our action. It would be better that Spain itself should raise the blockade of Valparaiso, but it would be intolerable that it should not somehow or other be raised."

The Paris correspondent of the London Post (Dec 4th,) insists that the United States is expected to declare war against Spain.

News from Madrid is looked forward to with much interest as we expect to hear that Admiral Pareja may any day do anything, supported by the home government. I am assured by an authority that Chile will resist, and it is added that the United States will support the Chileans with arms. This assurance comes from a person who certainly might give a good guess of what the Washington Cabinet would do seeing another of the small sister republics unjustly attacked by a European Power. At all events an American squadron is on its way to Chilean waters and no one can say what events will occur. There is the Island of Cuba, which an admiral of the United States might visit with as much reason as Pareja has blockaded the Chilean ports. The Americans are getting jealously irritated about European interference with American republics. Mexico, Peru and Chile are sore subjects. Depend upon it, the United States will support the small republics, and not with words only, now that the civil war is over. As regards news from Madrid, we get the further assurance of Admiral Pareja's conduct being supported, and, what is more significant, several ships of war are being prepared for active service, provided with war material and marines in full complement. The Madrid Epoca says: "Spain will soon have twenty-five ships of war in the Pacific." Viewed from Paris, the Chilean difficulty presents itself just now as follows:—1. Spain will continue to prosecute her claims. 2. Chile will resist. 3. England and France will confine themselves to mutual observation. 4. The United States will come to the actual protection of Chile, and declare war with Spain.

The purpose of Spain to engage in active hostilities is set forth by late dispatches from Madrid.

A circular dispatch of Señor Bermudez de Castro, Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, addressed to the Spanish Ambassador, which has just been published, leaves no doubt about the serious nature of the Chilean difficulty. The Spanish government through this Minister, enters into a long defence of its own conduct and that of Admiral Pareja. It restates the causes of complaint, and declares that it has acted throughout with moderation. A considerable part of the letter is occupied with censure of the Spanish Ambassador for declaring that the Chilean explanations were satisfactory. The conclusion is a defense of Admiral Pareja against the charge of precipitancy. The Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs has further addressed a circular note to the representatives of Spain at foreign courts relative to the war with Chile.

The note approves the conduct of Admiral Pareja, and states that the reply of the Chilean government to the overtures of the Spanish Admiral precluded the possibility of any further negotiations, even under the mediation of the diplomatic body at Valparaiso. The note renews the assurance that Spain does not aspire to the conquest of the South American republic, but declares that she will not permit her dignity to be outraged without exacting satisfaction.

Correspondence from Madrid denies that the Spanish government has sent Admiral Pareja orders to suspend hostilities against Chile. The government is not even disposed to accept of the mediation of neutral Powers. Orders have been given to the Spanish naval arsenals to push forward the preparations of war vessels for sea.

The Spanish Minister of Marine had issued a circular ordering the commanders of Spanish ships to treat as pirates all vessels of which the captain, the officers and majority of the crew are not Chileans, or who may not have received their commissions direct from the Chilean government.

The English Minister at Valparaiso has been smartly snubbed by the commander of the Spanish fleet, as appears by the following:

The Madrid Epoca publishes a note from Admiral Pareja to the English Minister at Valparaiso. The Minister had written to the Admiral stating that he could not believe that Valparaiso would be blockaded, in view of the large amount of property owned by foreigners in the city. The Admiral curtly replied that if proper warning was given to neutrals to remove their effects it was the incontestable right of belligerents to resort to bombardment. We therefore gave due warning.

Admiral Pareja has issued a proclamation in the high pressure, sensation style. The Madrid correspondent of the London Times says of it:

The Madrid papers print a proclamation of Admiral Pareja to the soldiers and sailors of his squadron. He reminds his men of the prowess with which a mere handful of their progenitors subdued those vast territories three hundred years since, inveighs against the treason and perfidy which wrenched them from their fatherland fifty years ago, and holds, in fact, a language which would be hardly justifiable if the purpose of the expedition had been as the world surmised, the reconquest of those Southern colonies.

THE FUNERAL OF TOM SAYERS.—A vast mob of roughs assembled at the funeral of Tom Sayers, and celebrated the obsequies of the champion of all England by a general fight over his grave. The Daily News says:

Hundreds of the foulest scum of the back courts and alleys of London, the creatures who only come to light in the aggregate at an execution or race course, or an illegal betting ground, rushed to hold saturnalia at the grave side. For a few minutes the police were completely overcome. They were a mere handful of men against the enemy, but they subsequently rallied, and once more succeeded in closing the cemetery gates. Many of the roughs were trodden down in the rush, and after it was over the gasping, speechless forms stretched at no unfrequent intervals on the grass or reared by their luckier comrades against the tombs while neck cloths were torn open and animation restored, spoke to the severity of the conflict.

BUCHANAN'S BOOK.—The Louisville Journal says of this production:

Buchanan has committed a foolish waste of time and toil, and money in writing, and publishing a book to vindicate his course as President just before and after the breaking out of the rebellion. It is not worth while to argue a case after the verdict has been rendered and the punishment (universal condemnation and contempt) inflicted. Benedict Arnold's ghost might as well attempt to reverse the world's decision as James Buchanan.

RICH DIGGINGS.—We learn that the miners in this region generally are reaping a golden harvest this season, and we are told of a couple of men who washed out with a rocker one day last week some $160 or $170. This was in the claim that crosses the stage road just below the residence of Mr. N. C. Dean near Willow Springs. The large amount of rain and snow experienced this winter has proved a god send to our miners.—Jacksonville Reporter.

HUMAN DEPENDENCE.—The race of mankind would perish did they cease to aid each other. From the time that the mother binds the child's head till the moment that some kind assistant wipes the death damp from the brows of the dying we cannot exist without mutual help. All, therefore that need aid have a right to ask it of their fellow mortals; no one who holds the power of granting can refuse without guilt.—Sir W. Scott.

It is said that a New Yorker, residing on Nineteenth street, discovered lately that he had lived for two years in the same block with his brother whom he had not seen for two years.

By Overland Telegraph.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JANUARY 15.

Louis Napoleon and the United States.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The Times's Washington special states that a private letter from a trustworthy source received from Paris states that the Legislature of the French Empire is to assemble about the 18th inst. The Emperor in his address will express the most amicable and pacific sentiments towards the United States, and unless in the meanwhile the relations of the two countries become more hostile by measures on [illegible] he will promise the evacuation of Mexico as promptly as practicable.

Congressional—Senate. The English Troubles.

WASHINGTON, Jan 15.—Senator Chandler offered a preamble and resolution declaring as follows: The British Government having refused indemnity for damage done American commerce by her subjects, therefore

Resolved, That the President be requested to withdraw our Minister from the Court of St James and declare national non intercourse between the two nations.

Mr Dixon objected to the resolution. It was laid over under the rules.

Mr Howard offered a resolution calling for the trial of Jeff Davis and Clay by military commission or court martial. Resolution objected to and lies over.

General News.

CHICAGO, Jan 15.—A letter from Governor Morton, of Indiana giving an account of his arrival in England, says: I have eaten but one meal since I went aboard the steamer and that was on the evening that I left. My limbs are very weak, much weaker than when I started. Serious apprehensions are felt as to the effect of this trip upon his health.

A dispatch from Huntsville, Ala., to the Times, says that in that portion of north Alabama, east of Huntsville, great destitution prevails, and that relief to both whites and blacks by the State or General Government, is indispensable. Around Tuscumbia and Florence, everything seems to prosper, except that there are not enough laborers to work one half of the land. The freedmen are all at work at good wages. More are wanted. White labor is also fully employed.

Brigadier General Sammon has been elected President of the Ohio Military Academy at Cincinnati.

The steamer May Queen, belonging at this port, but laid up at Milwaukee was burned on Saturday night, loss, $30,000, insured for $20,000.

One half of the business portion of Dowagiac, Michigan, was destroyed by fire on Sunday last, loss $70,000 to $80,000. Seventeen stores were consumed.

Speaker Colfax, in an address at Poughkeepsie, N Y, on Saturday night, said that no rupture would take place between the President and Congress.

In the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan 15.—In the House, Delano of Ohio, presented the credentials of the representative elect from Arkansas. Referred to the Committee on reconstruction.

Conklin, of New York, introduced an amendment to the Constitution, which was similarly referred. The amendment provides that the basis of representation and taxation shall be the whole number of citizens of the United States, but where colored people are denied the right of suffrage, such race shall be exempted from the basis.

Brownell, of Pennsylvania, offered a resolution setting forth that as the white men in the District of Columbia have decided that the blacks shall not vote, the Committee for the District of Columbia inquire into the expediency of ordering an election at which the blacks shall decide whether the whites shall vote. Laid on the table.

Kasson, of Iowa, from the special Committee, made a statement refuting the charge of the New York News that Mrs. Lincoln had been guilty of larceny of furniture, &c., from the White House. He said the Committee had examined over a dozen witnesses and found no ground for the charge. Only one article was missing, and that was given to Mrs. Lincoln by the Secretary of the Interior, and Commissioner of Public Buildings.

It is stated that Gen. Grant is at work on the detail of a new military bill, to be incorporated with the best features of Senator Wilson's bill, or supersede it altogether.

It is stated on good authority that the Senate Committee on contested elections has prepared a report adverse to Senator Stockton of New Jersey.

Outlaws in Alabama.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 13.—The Mobile Register says the steamer Sallie, captured by outlaws was rescued by a detachment of the 21st Missouri. After landing about 70 bales of government cotton the outlaws left. The officers of the boat who were in durance vile during its possession by the guerillas, say they expressed a determination to prevent any Government cotton coming down the Alabama river.

A fire occurred at Talladega, Alabama, involving a loss of $75,000.

Four car loads of cotton were burned in Texas on the Central railroad, en route for Houston. Loss $500,000.

The Third Michigan cavalry was disarmed at San Antonio for mutiny.

A national Bank has been organized at Galveston.

The Liberal Government of Mexico.

Washington, Jan 14.—Official intelligence from the city of Chihuahua, Dec 10th, has been received.

Juarez instead of being at San Antonio, Texas, as reported, was sojourning quietly at Chihuahua. He writes to a friend as follows: "The commanding officers of the frontier and the political leaders have all expressed their approval of the extension of my term, and I have reason to believe that the same will happen in other states of the Republic."

The French had sent another expedition to Chihuahua and should this be in great force, the Mexican Government will again abandon that city for some other convenient point in the republic.

The Revenue Taxes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The Herald's Washington special dispatch says that no reduction on revenue tax on tobacco, whisky, cotton or petroleum is contemplated, but the tax is likely to be increased. The warehouses of Antonio Marcus, at Matamoras, were burned. 58 lives were lost and several persons were severely injured.

The New Senators from Iowa.

S. J. Kirkwood and Jas. Harlan have been elected U. S. Senators from Iowa, Kirkwood for the long term. Col. Ackerman and ex-provisional Governor Marvin, have been elected U. S. Senators from Florida, over two rebel generals. They arrived at Savannah on the 6th, en route for Washington.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 17.—Manuel Guillean, Agent of the Mexican Empire in this city, publishes to-day a decree of the Imperial Government of Mexico, issued at the City of Mexico, November 14th, 1865, annulling all allocations of public lands and all contracts made by the Government of Juarez since its departure from the capital, thereby intending to render null and void any transfer or mortgage of public lands given by Juarez for the purpose of obtaining loans for the benefit of the Republican cause.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 19.—It is currently reported and in such a manner as to give strong plausibility to the story, that young Macy, the defaulting mint clerk, left here on the opposition steamer Moses Taylor on the 16th of December under the name of James Murry.

Captain Nelson of the schooner Ella Francis was knocked overboard by the boom of his vessel and drowned during the last trip from Point Reyes to this city.

Judge Pratt to day granted Wm. Y. Johnson a divorce from his wife, Amy Johnson.

Judgment was rendered this morning in the Twelfth District Court for $3,21[illegible] 50 in favor of the California Building and Loan Society and against Calvin B. Woodbury et als for a foreclosure and sale of certain mortgaged premises to satisfy judgment.

The steamer Colorado took $925,260 treasure and about the usual number of passengers.

The prize fight between Chandler and Maguire took place at Lakeville yesterday. The combatants fought thirty-five rounds, when the fight was suspended on account of darkness, until morning. Chandler was on hand in the morning but Maguire failed to make his appearance and the stakes for which they fought—some $2,000—were awarded to Chandler.

The second annual ball of the San Francisco Fire Department at Music Hall last night was a brilliant affair and a decided success.

The overland telegraph is not in operation and the legal tender market is heavy. Sales at the Board of $30,000 at 70¾a70½. The mining share market is unusually dull, with a general shading of prices.

Butter—strictly prime New York State quoted at 37½a40cts; good do 37½. Western 30a35. Candles are well sustained. Flour—the market runs steady with a moderate demand; superfine in half sacks per bbl $6.50; quarter sacks $6.75; extra half sacks $7; quarter sacks $7.25. Outside brands sell at 25cts off per bbl. Wheat—good to prime $2.10a$2.20. Barley—sales include 175 sacks choice brewing at $1.12½.

THAT OLD GREENBACK CASE!

I am still obliged to accept of legal Tender Notes at Par (and have been since Dec 17, 1862) for the rent of my Handsome Brick Store corner of Morrison and Front streets. I feel compelled to announce for the benefit of the public, that JACOB MAYER Leased the building of me Feb 17, 1862, for a term of years, at which time there was no such currency in vogue, and it was understood the terms were Cash. Since the date above stated I have received the depreciated currency regularly for the rent of the CITY OF PARIS STORE! making less than two fifths of the real amount said Mayer was to pay. He had secured the building at very advantageous rates, and even were he now to comply with his contract, and pay in Coin, would be getting the best bargain in the city. I make this statement to show the public what kind of a man he must be, to take such undue advantages of the times to convert a few dollars to himself by LEGAL SWINDLING. The public can readily see how much it costs to have such tenants in such costly buildings, as the one referred to above.

[illegible] Monopoly.—We are called upon [illegible] statement which appeared in this [illegible] last, in reference to the treatment of passengers [illegible] Pacific, who were put ashore below the city [illegible] allowed to proceed on their voyage without pay[illegible] passage, when they had once paid and held their [illegible]. The agents of the California Steam Navigation [illegible] claim that the passengers had no right to go [illegible] Pacific, as their tickets were to go from Astoria [illegible] Sierra Nevada. Now it was not specified [illegible] by what steamer they were to go. The [illegible] paid their fare through from Victoria and [illegible] to leave by the steamer of Jan 3d (on or about), [illegible] unfortunately delayed, and we are sure they [illegible] to complain at not being allowed to go by [illegible] after they reached here, inasmuch as [illegible] known that the California company are both [illegible] and the Pacific and their arrangements are [illegible] Holliday's line that it could not possibly have [illegible] loss to either. If it was not the turn of the [illegible] if she was not authorized to take those pas[illegible] then we assert that so long as the Sierra [illegible] at the wharf, the Pacific did wrong to leave as [illegible]

The fact that the tickets of these persons called [illegible] from Astoria does not effect the justice of the [illegible] they were shamefully imposed upon and any [illegible] business can see what is apt to result from a de[illegible] of three weeks to a person who is traveling on an [illegible] mission. We are glad to know that the matter [illegible] stopped here, and we urgently hope that a [illegible] investigation of the case may result in the finding [illegible] parties in this instance guilty of a flagrant viola[illegible] it is, of the principles which govern common car[illegible]. Should they fail to obtain that measure of justice [illegible] entitled to, it could be attributed to none other [illegible] the mere technicality that they embarked at Port[illegible] of Astoria, and as steamships are not obliged [illegible] passengers from this place to Astoria, they [illegible] not get there for the purpose of fulfilling their part [illegible] contract. These passengers were not disposed to [illegible] of their detention on account of the accident [illegible] happened the Sierra Nevada, but still anxious to [illegible] ward, waited as patiently as possible for the [illegible] to arrive. When the latter vessel took her de[illegible] it was freezing, and the Sierra Nevada could by [illegible] possibly get off sooner than after the second [illegible] following. Were they not entitled to a spark of [illegible] under these circumstances? Were they to be [illegible] like dogs [illegible] they hailed from John Bull's [illegible] they were gentl[illegible] and [illegible] to be treated like gentl[illegible]. We have not the [illegible] alteration to make to our statement of Saturday.

The matter has again given rise to conversation in [illegible] that may result to our home interests. For [illegible] we have suffered intolerably at the hands of those [illegible] they carry our freights, they carry our pas[illegible] in [illegible] crafts, quite unfit for the service, [illegible] adapted to the trade. They never think of [illegible] anything better than the old worn out tubs [illegible] commenced decaying in the aggrandizement of [illegible] thinking even these quite as good as the [illegible] masses of Oregon should have. No [illegible] "shrewd business man" need [illegible] they choose so to do. For years [illegible] listened to promises, and been deluded by the [illegible] something would be done through the energy [illegible] of our own people, to check the policy [illegible] these concerns. At no time has the coast [illegible] as now. There is an elegant ship [illegible] New York, thanks to the energy of her own[illegible] well for us. We hope to see her [illegible] to form the nucleus of a line [illegible] those now in the trade to take such [illegible] put on that. [illegible] be eager to [illegible] hand of Time has indelibly writ[illegible] "[illegible] Away," but nothing is [illegible] earthly resting place than is the [illegible] about as last week. The [illegible] day to a melting mood, and by [illegible] has caused the river to rapidly [illegible] to disappear. [illegible] of her clothing caught on a nail [illegible] to halt for the purpose of disen[illegible] and with all the strength she [illegible] rushed [illegible] the unlucky house behind. About the [illegible] portion of the awning on Stark street, adja[illegible] Exchange, gave way, falling into [illegible] that surround that catacomb of [illegible] the Bella Union. A rumbling noise, [illegible] on the wall of the Exchange [illegible] San Franciscan an impression that it [illegible] of an earthquake. Screeching at the [illegible] "Earthquake! boys, run!" he made a [illegible] door, and at the same instant down [illegible] through a window in its course [illegible] glass, good seven up hands [illegible] who was possessed of two feet [illegible] for western extension. We regret the [illegible] that any man should unfit himself for [illegible] in life by such course as that pur[illegible]. He very seldom refused to drink, and [illegible] at last. We believe he leaves [illegible] but he had long since neglected [illegible]. There can be no doubt but that the [illegible] on liquor offers greater inducements [illegible] in after years, and bears with it [illegible] of misery—a premium on poverty.

"The Golden Bowl Broken."—A Southern paper—the Montgomery (Alabama,) Ledger,—deeply mourns the loss of that blessed institution slavery. It is a cause for everlasting regret that the editor who was so charmed with the beauties of the "peculiar institution" is not himself a slave so that he could enjoy that full measure of contentment and bliss which he tells us was once the lot of the negro. He thus proceeds in his plaint:

"On every plantation throughout our border, the kindly and hospitable master dwelt, surrounded by his 'dusky peasantry' who found in him at once a protector and a friend. Then was the negro the slave, truly prosperous for ease, plenty and comfort were the heritage he enjoyed. His food his clothing, his comfortable cabin, all provided for his use by his provident and watchful master whose kindness and whose interest both combined to impel him to furnish them. No happier, no more profitable, no more appropriate lot could be devised for the negro, and if hereafter some Virgil of that race shall sing of its golden age, the scene will be laid during its servitude, under the masters of the South.' [In the madness of his woe our chivalrous friend seem to have forgotten himself. A negro Virgil! A degraded chattle become a great poet! Heard ever any one the like? The very Abolitionists have never predicted as much.] 'But the abolitionist and the fanatic, swarming from his Northern hive, accompanied with fire and sword, and swooping the land as with a besom of destruction, has marred and shivered the happy and delightful picture. Satan of old entered and corrupted the pristine innocence of Adam and Eve in the Paradise of Eden, so has the Devil of fanaticism blighted the Paradise of the negro and betrayed him to his ruin. The home of his contentment, and the generous hearted master have no longer a charm for him, and growing distasteful, are abandoned by him for some fabulous El Dorado of wealth, and happiness, and glory that exists only in his own deluded imagination, or on the false tongue of his hypocritical liberator.'"

Sir Morton Peto at Home.—Sir Morton Peto, one of the party of English capitalists who lately visited this country, made a speech at Bristol, England, on the 18th of November, in which he said of this country:

He received kindness without precedent, and had the amplest opportunity given him of knowing everything he desired to know; and it was his own fault if the desire for knowledge was not more than gratified. He went there at a most interesting epoch of the history of America—at the close of the most tremendous struggle known in modern times. He did expect to find exhaustion, and society somewhat disarranged, but he saw nothing of the kind. (Cheers.) There was nothing throughout the whole of the great country that would have led him to suppose such a struggle had existed. To understand America they must go there, and no man of business entering life should consider his education complete until he paid a visit to the United States. He expressed himself as astounded beyond measure at our greatness, growth and power, as they had displayed themselves in war and in peace. On the great questions of the reconstruction of the Union and the maintenance of peace between America and England, he expressed himself as satisfied with the prospects, and a protest which he made against the Christian people of the two countries imbruing their hands in each other's blood was followed by loud applause, the whole assemblage rising to their feet, and cheering the honorable baronet most enthusiastically.

The Typical Irishman.—It must be admitted that the typical Irishman is a Proteus. View him in one way, he is the Merry Andrew of Europe, a ragged, roguish clown who never opens his mouth but to utter (in a brogue which is itself ridiculous) either a jest or a bull. View him from another side, he is the suffering victim of unmerited oppression, the patient martyr of his ancient faith, the sensitive, poetic Celt, whose phrases are rich with imagery and pathos, and whose soul breathes through such melodies as the "Last Rose of Summer" and "Savournah Deelish." Now—he is the tipsy bully, brandishing his shillelagh in a faction fight and trailing his ragged coat in the mud to provoke his equally pugnacious neighbor to trample upon it. And now—he is the silent secret plotting Ribbonman, nourishing his Vendetta for years, till he can shoot his unarmed and helpless victim from behind a hedge. Now—he is the most warm hearted, faithful creature in the world, toiling to reap English harvests and win bread for the wife and children he tenderly loves. And now—he is the idlest, laziest loon that ever lay smoking by the side of a ditch, while his cabin fell to pieces for want of repair, and his ragged and half-starved children ran uncared for about the bogs. The Irishman is religious, chaste, and charitable. He is also idle, improvident and vindictive. He is the bravest of soldiers, and the most arrant moral coward in the world, the hero of Fontenoy and the slave of every vulgar priest. He is the Martyr of Europe—and the Buffoon.—Fraser's Magazine.

A Funny Affair in Louisiana.—The Louisiana legislature were somewhat victimized very recently. A communication was received by the Senate, of which the following is the opening: "The undersigned, a committee of ladies of New Orleans, wish to present your honorable body with a United States flag," etc. The Senate received the communication, accepted the flag, and fixed an hour in the afternoon for its formal reception. Shortly after they repaired to the hall of the House of Representatives for the purpose of electing a State Printer. That duty performed, they returned to their own chamber, and ordered, forthwith, that everything relating to the letter and the flag should be expunged from the journals of the Senate. In the interval the fact had leaked out that the ladies desiring to make the presentation were colored.

Singular Circumstances.—The case of Frank Gurley, now under sentence of death in Huntsville, Ala., is a strange one. He was convicted of the murder of Gen. Robt. McCook, by a military commission; his case was overlooked at Washington; he was exchanged at Point Lookout, and afterward presented himself to the authorities at Nashville, Tenn., and took the oath of allegiance. He was elected a few days ago Sheriff of Madison county, Ala. His election discovered his whereabouts. The affair creates much excitement in North Alabama.

Death of Mrs Gaskill.—Mrs. Gaskill, author of the Life of Charlotte Bronte and several successful novels, tales and sketches, died at Manchester, England, on Sunday, November 12th, at the age of 43. She was the wife of the Rev. William Gaskill, a Unitarian clergyman, and her works have considerable popularity both in England and America.

Indictments for Treason.—The grand jury of the U. S. District Court at Knoxville have found indictments numbering over nineteen hundred, for treason and giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

"My brethren," said Swift, in a sermon, "there are three kinds of pride, namely, of birth, of riches, of intellect. I shall not speak of the latter none of you being liable to that abominable vice."

WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.

We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:

It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear,
It is entirely noiseless;
A patented device prevents its being turned backward;
The needle cannot be set wrong;
Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine;
It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars, enquire of FRANKLIN SAID NEAR A CENTURY AGO: "MY object is to call attention to the fact, that a Policy of Life Insurance is the Best and Safest Provision that a man can make for his family." All experience proves THAT THIS IS A FACT.

THE HOME is conducted on the mutual plan, in the best sense of the word. It divides the profits ANNUALLY, and applies the same immediately to pay the amount due on the annual premium.

THE HOME has an ample Cash Capital, securely invested under the laws of the State of New York for the protection of Policy-Holders, and has a Board of Directors of unimpeachable character, all of whom are Stock-Holders in the Company.

It offers a permanent loan to the assured of one-half of the annual premium which loan is paid by the annual dividends, or deducted from the amount due under the Policy.

Notice
To Persons taking out Licenses in the City of Portland.

CITY MARSHAL'S OFFICE, Jan. 8, 1866.

THE ATTENTION OF ALL PERSONS DOING BUSINESS in the City of Portland, which requires a City License, is directed to Sec. 15 of Ordinance No 110, which is as follows:

"That every person, firm, company or corporation, required by this Ordinance to obtain a License to engage in any trade, business or [illegible] for which a License is required by this Ordinance shall pay to the City Treasurer such sum or sums as hereinafter provided. [illegible] with the receipt of the City Treasurer, which receipt shall set forth the kind of business for which the License is desired, they shall apply to the City Auditor who shall issue a License to the parties applying in accordance with the receipt of the Treasurer."

In consequence of the refusal or neglect of many persons to apply to the Auditor for such License, after paying the money to the Treasurer, I am ordered by the Common Council to give notice that unless persons comply with the requirements of said Ordinance, they will be arrested and prosecuted whether they have paid the money or not.

THE STANDARD
AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables manufactured exclusively at their establishment.

At the Billiard Congress of 1863 composed of all the first class players of America it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture shall be used at all matches for the championship, as the best and only reliable tables

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges who have universally pronounced them unequalled for general excellence and durability.

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government for our improvements in Billiard Cushions.

We employ in the construction of our tables a variety of machines specially made for the purpose, by means of which we are enabled to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch

The eminent French Billiard Player, M Berger has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK, 2d August 1861

"On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that, after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge in a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender The system of manufacturing is so superior, that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty For these reasons I am happy to make this declaration

"BERGER, CLAUDIUS
Prof of Billiards, Paris

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for We sell first-class articles at fair prices, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail The "BILLIARD CUE" a journal published in the interest of Billiards, and containing details of all novelties a copious record of Billiard news, and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards, sent free on application.
M E HUGHES,

ALLEN'S
LUNG BALSAM!
The Remedy for Curing
CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,
Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists Price $1 per bottle.

"CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,
Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,
GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATtended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the debilitated and shattered system. In fact, it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above-mentioned and also—

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, FLUOR ALBUS,

And in every disease any way connected with the disorder or decay of the PROCREATIVE FUNCTIONS. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness, should take the

CONSTITUTION WATER,

Whether broken down by excess weak by nature or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once braced, revivified and built up Well may this celebrated medicine be called the

MEDICAL WONDER.

The stooping trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom of an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated conscious of new vigor — The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER, INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, AND
CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,
STRANGUARY AND BURNING, OR PAINFUL
URINATING,
CALCULUS, GRAVEL,
BRICK DUST DEPOSIT, AND MUCOUS
OR MILKY DISCHARGES AFTER URINATING,

For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. TRY IT in these cases and you will ever give praise to

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Males or Females,

Are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips! CONSTITUTION WATER will relieve you like magic
